The evolution from GENIVI to COVESA is complete and the momentum is building measured in new members and projects. We're all eager to be back together in person in late April and that's why the Leipzig AMM is a must-attend event for those that can meet in person.

Keeping with COVESA's core value of being member-driven, the program will consist largely of Member-provided content, from both business and technical perspectives. Who defines the future of connected vehicles? COVESA members do and this event will be a new beginning toward that end.

Expect a blend of informative talks and panels, technical workshops, birds-of-a-feather sessions exploring new projects, and a great showcase reception, for which we are actively seeking sponsors and several tables are still available.

The cost is free to COVESA members (within current membership benefit guidelines) and very affordable for non-members. April is not far away (but, hopefully, far enough to be safe together in person) so make plans to attend today and click on the registration button above. You might also consider involvement in the program, (COVESA members contact Karin Hanson) and showcase event (contact Mike Nunnery for more info).

All attendees must show proof of COVID vaccination.

You can start to book your rooms now at the link below or on the registration site.
